

British Columbia
Institute of Property Inspectors

BCIPI Talks with Mark Forsythe, Host of the CBC Radio Show Almanac

March 30, 2009

BCIPI talks with Mark Forsythe, host of the CBC radio show Almanac regarding a new requirement for all home inspectors in BC to be licensed as of March 31, 2009. The interview identified that BCIPI inspectors certified by ASTTBC have the highest training qualifications in BC for home inspectors and why the public still need to be vigilant when choosing their inspector.

“BCIPI did a great job of portraying the new licensing model, need for the consumer to remain vigilant when selecting an inspector, and in looking to BCIPI inspectors as the highest qualified in BC” said John Leech, ASTTBC Executive Director. “I encourage our 9,000 members and other partners to look first for the CPI, CHI or CHI(P) professional designations when selecting a house inspector. You can rely on ASTTBC’s high standards and the professional integrity of our members”.

For the interview please go to:

http://www.bchouseinspections.ca/myinspection/_pdf_articles/09-03-31%20CBC%20Radio%20Licensing.mp3